Golf balls using solid cores are known as golf balls having improved shot feel and controllability, and in recent years, a lot of golf balls made of a core enclosed in a cover and having excellent distance have been developed. However, these golf balls have a problem that ball velocity drops with an increase of spin rate due to the worse rebound property. On the other hand, it is well known that ionomer resins are superior in rebound property, durability and scuff resistance. However, ionomer resins have a problem that ball velocity is remarkably reduced with an increase of spin rate. Thus, there is a need for a golf ball having a solid core and a cover made of an ionomer resin having good rebound property and superior in durability and scuff resistance.G rard Boisrond G rard Boisrond (born 8 March 1943) is a French former swimmer.
